Background

Writing research proposal for securing research grants as well as writing reports for publishing paper in international peerreviewed journal is one of the skills needed by researchers and academic staffs at universities. However, though academically qualified, many researchers are often not well equipped with the art of how to apply for research grants from international funding agencies and to prepare for publication in international journals, which requires adequate relevant scientific knowledge and skill.

Central Laboratory of Research and Service-Diponegoro University (CORES-DU) will hold one-day workshop on applying for international research grant and writing scientific paper. This workshop aims to improve the scientific research skill for preparing good quality research project proposal and writing manuscript for international journals, so that they will have the best chance of being approved.
